COTTON MARKETS.

New York, Aug. 3.—Notwithstanding heavy realising at times the tone of the cotton market was strong today. A report of Secretary Hester, of the cachange at New Orleans, placing the world's consumption of world cotton ending July 3, at 14,800,600 bales and temperatures ranging to 109 at Okiahoma with the average maximum range over the State about 122 degrees, were factors.

The high temperatures in the Southwest caused a good deal of unessiness. Some of the biggest operators were active buyers. Up-town interests also purchased large amounts. Strength at Liverpool also helped the market here. The close was steady at a net advance of 21530 points. Spot at Liverpool was quiet at an advance of 215 points on the Basis of 840d for mid-upland. Futures in the English market closed firm at a net advance of 215 points. Spot here was already. 40 points higher at 13.86.

Prot receipts for the day were 6.855 bales, compared with 7.460 bales last week and 4.562 bales last year. New York warehouse stocks are 69.69 bales, against 2:8,751 bales a year ago. Exports

Tonight has been set aside for the chauffeurs as chauffeurs night and the ocal organization has been extended an invitation to attend. All not members of the association, but who are cars as a profession, are likewise invited to attend.

Things look bright for an automobile race meet to be held at a local track on Labor Day. All that remains to be done is to sign the lease for the track and send out the entry blanks. Those behind the movement have been in communica-tion with several drivers of fast cars, who hail from Philadelphia and New York. All have agreed to file their entry blanks just as soon as the promoters are in shape to receive them. In addition to the racing car events it is planned to hold some stock car races, open only to observation until the true nature of its malady is recognized, even though noth-ing of a serious character develops. As its name indicates, it is a disease of nfancy or early childhood, involving the nervous system and resulting in partial or complete paralysis of one or more parts of the body. It is not a new disease, as many believe, but its outbreak in epidemic form is more or less recent, and it is this fact that has called such world-wide attention to it. There are always some cases of infantile paralysis in every community of children, and these are known as sporadic; that is, they crop out singly now and then. But when a great nany are stricken down at the same time involving during its prevalence in 1907 In the city of New York 2,500 cases—it be-comes an epidemic startling alike to the public and to physicians.

One fact of extreme interest brought out during this outbreak is that the dis-case loses some of its characteristics during an epidemic and attacks adults; also, unlike a great many diseases that appear in epidemic form, it is not confined to one class of society, but reaches those living under the best hygienic confined to the confined to one class of society but reaches those living under the best hygienic confined to the confined to th ditions. It is also of much shorter duration, and usually appears in hot weather when the rainfall is low. For these rea-sons, many physicians are of the opinion that we are dealing with another condition when it breaks out in large num-

However, infantile paralysis is usually confined to the years of infancy (up to the age of 3.) It does, of course, attack older children, but it is extremely rare during the first six months of life.
